Dennis' Preakness Plays:

My $1 Exacta bets will be 5,2 with 5,2,4,10 = $6 and a $1 5-2-4 box = $12 and a $1 5-2-10 box = $12 total $30.

My $1 Trifecta bet will be 5,2 with 5,2,4,10 with all = $48

My 0.10 cent High 5 will be 5,2 with 5,2,4,10 with 5,2,4,10,6 with 4,10,6,3, with 4,10,6,3 = $7.60

Total Play = $85.60 so giddyup! As some may do, you can always double, triple or more the above figures.

Preakness Stakes Analysis: Classic Empire: I believe Classic Empire wins this race. The son of Pioneerof the Nile finished fourth in the Derby. Classic Empire was involved in a chain-reaction kind of collision that began when Irish War Cry veered into McCracken. Five horses, including Classic Empire, were involved in the jostling and none finished in the money. Classic Empire will be ridden by jockey Julien Leparoux again in the Preakness and the veteran rider will have a much better outcome with fewer horses in the field than the whopping 20 in the Kentucky Derby. "He ran a great race to finish fourth and never quit on me," Leparoux said. "Hopefully we get a cleaner trip at Pimlico." "It's always a fairer race. You don't have 20 horses, you don't have a bunch of horses that don't belong in the race," Casse added. "Things get sorted out a little bit more here at the Preakness."His finish in the Run for the Roses is impressive considering the bumping he took after the start. He is the most likely winner, based on his running fourth in the Derby, his don't give up attitude, and his finish in the Arkansas Derby, when he exploded in the stretch to pass Conquest Mo Money. I also feel that jockey Julien Leparoux keeps Classic Empire only a half length off the pace set by Always Dreaming and Conquest Mo Money. Cloud Computing: Cloud Computing had no chance of catching Irish War Cry or Battalion Runner in the Wood Memorial. Still, he kept fighting hard. What I really like are the works leading up to the Preakness Stakes. Top trainer Chad Brown has Cloud Computing ready to show his best and the connection with Javier Castellano ain't to shabby either. I don't believe that he's that far away from either Always Dreaming or Classic Empire. Since he's the fresh shooter horse, he has an advantage over Empire and Dreaming.s. Always Dreaming: Four times this decade, the Derby winner failed to take the Preakness, including last year when Exaggerator romped home to a 3 1/2 length victory. Triple Crown dreams were dashed as Derby winner Nyquist finished third. Always Dreaming is likely going to have a tougher test here. Now he is the horse everyone else in the race will be trying to beat, and it will be a very tactical affair. Always Dreaming will be racing on two weeks' rest after normally getting a month in between. Most likely regression after a great trip in the mud. Conquest Mo Money: The late-blooming son of Uncle Mo sat out the Derby. Conquest Mo Money rain in the Arkansas Derby, where he ran a game second to Classic Empire at 15-1, finishing ahead of Lookin At Lee. He's the ultimate outside shooter in this race. His talent and running style will make for a dangerous combination in the Preakness. He should be at or on the lead, and I would not be surprised if he runs a big race Saturday. Gunnevera: Two-time Eclipse Award winning Hall of Fame jockey Mike Smith will replace four-time winner Javier Castellano who has chosen another horse for the Preakness. Castellano finished seventh aboard Gunnevera in the Kentucky Derby while Smith rode Girvin to a 13th-place finish. For the Preakness Stakes, Castellano, who rides a number of horses for New York-based trainer Chad Brown, will be aboard Cloud Computing and I seriously doubt he would jump off a winner. Gunnevera is a hard closer and weird things happen in the Triple Crown. But, I have him in the 5 slot. Keep in mind that Mike Smith is as good as any rider at knowing when to make race-altering moves. My personal plays are listed above after the 13th race.
